

Kellee Davenport, Broker/Owner, Davenport Properties

For Broker Kellee Davenport, helping people's dreams come true is how she truly "walks the walk." After 20 years as owner/operator of an in-home, licensed daycare, Kellee pursued her own dream of becoming a real estate professional. Now, 11 years later, Kellee owns a multi-location brokerage serving five counties: Amador, Calaveras, El Dorado, Sacramento and San Joaquin. With Kellee's leadership, Davenport Properties has achieved the #1 independent real estate brokerage in Amador County for three straight years and placed in the top three in sales for the past five years.

But numbers only tell part of the story; those numbers represent homebuyers and sellers who are realizing their own dreams. She will tell you herself that working with first-time homebuyers is one of her passions in real estate, and negotiating the best deal possible is another, which is something that home buyers and sellers, with portfolios of all shapes and sizes, appreciate and need.

As a resident of Amador County for almost four decades, Kellee understands the nuances and unique offerings of every corner of the county, giving her the ultimate "birds-eye view" when it comes to matching home buyers with a location to suit their lifestyle.

Dave Eisenhower, Agent, Davenport Properties

Dave Eisenhower has been a licensed real estate agent for a little more than a year, but an expert on Sierra Nevada foothill living for most of his life. After having grown up in Amador County, Dave raised his own family right here, and spent two decades in radio and corporate communications. A few years ago, with kids grown, Dave decided the time was right to finally pursue another passion of his—real estate. After securing his agent's license, Dave immediately joined the team of real estate veterans at Davenport Properties in Jackson. He represents buyers and sellers in Amador County, Calaveras County to the south, and El Dorado County to the north. He credits both his natural curiosity about people and his long career as an on-air radio personality with his ability to connect to others—a perfect fit with meeting the needs of his real estate clients, many of whom come from outside the region.

When Dave tells clients that Amador County is the perfect place to live, raise children and (someday) retire, he means it, for both its ideal location between two other Northern California favorites of his—San Francisco and Lake Tahoe, and the tightly knit community it has always provided.
